To study the course of tuberculosis and the degree of its spread in HIV-positive patients in the Czech Republic in the 1990-2015 period. Retrospective analysis of the treatment of tuberculosis in 1,021 patients was performed in the period 1990-2015 in the Czech Republic. In the 30-year period, the number of tuberculosis cases in HIV-positive patients increased by 0.2 times, per 1,000 inhabitants, against the background of an increasing trend observed in the general population. The risk of progression from latent to active tuberculosis was significantly higher in HIV-positive patients. The mortality due to tuberculosis among HIV-positive patients increased by 4.2 times, 1-4 times more than among HIV-negative patients. During the 1990-2015 period, the number of patients with resistant to at least one drug was growing. The proportion of patients with multiple drug resistance (MDR) to both INH and RFP was increasing. The number of cases of resistance to fluoroquinolones has also been increasing
