Marks' parents for their all round support to us. Conclusions and Further work\ It is concluded that Marathi written by early childhood teachers is not only beneficial for their own social status, but also helps their young learners by enabling them to gain knowledge and practice. It is also interesting that as teachers age, they are getting younger. now even at an age of 33, they are more keen towards providing quality education to young kids. \ We hope that in coming days, new reforms are introduced, such that these teachers get the opportunity to be promoted to higher posts, and hopefully even to gain more responsibility. This, then, will help them in developing a long-lasting career in the field of early childhood education. Early Childhood Teachers as a Double Helix- the Role of Parental Support (#early-childhood-teachers-as-a-double-helix-the-role-of-parental-support.unnumbered) ===== Chenya Amatya, BSN\ Chenya Amatya, a postgraduate Diploma in Early Childhood Care and Education (ECCE) holder, teaches at St. Patrick's College, in Mulund, a non-religious daycare centre. She holds Master's degree in Community Health. Introduction\ Caregivers play a very important role in the education of young children. Many studies have suggested that caregivers influence a child's attitude towards learning. However, the influence of the parents or the caregivers on the early childhood teachers is mostly ignored. Research question\ Does early childhood teachers receive any parental support in the teaching-learning process? Background\ In today's world, early childhood education is essential for children and has become an important field of research. As of today, more and more parents are taking up care-giving jobs, which allow them to go for their jobs in the early morning. However, early childhood teachers can only teach in the afternoons and it is still too late for early childhood teachers to provide supervision to young children. To be able to care for the young children, the early childhood teachers need parental support. Methods\ A survey was conducted amongst early childhood teachers working in non-religious daycare centres in the suburbs of Mumbai, India. Forty-four questionnaires were distributed among early childhood
